

Continuing Professional Development for SVI Practitioners:

SVI Practitioner Status is valid for two years. During the two years whilst a practitioner is qualified, there is an expectation that levels of skill, knowledge and competency will be maintained or enhanced.

Some forms of continuing professional development (CPD) will be expected to be evidenced at renewal of SVI Practitioner status. This can include, for example, writing an SROI report, taking part in a social value working group or committee, or developing a social value management system for your organisation.

Examples of satisfactory evidence include (but are not limited to):

- Training – participating in, or training of others.
- SROI or Social Value reports – author of, having assured, or supporting other organisations to produce.
- Standards, guidance, or other publications – assisting in production of a publication (e.g., through writing a section, or providing feedback comments on a draft).
- Thought leadership, community or working groups – participating in, leading, or setting up.
- Assessor work linked to Social Value International.
- Involvement in Social Value International, or affiliated network governance structures.
